Thank the operator for the information. After the call, determine the impact the flight may have on manned aircraft operations. If it appears that this operation will conflict with manned aircraft operations at the airport, then contact the operator and express your concerns. Look for solutions that will allow the drone operator to fly without impacting manned aircraft operations. If the operator flies against your advice, and it appears that the flight may endanger manned aircraft operations, call local law enforcement and ask them to make the operator land and follow up with a call to the FAA.
